Joseph Artese Design Launches New Web Site

Seattle, Washington: Today, Joseph Artese of Joseph Artese Design announces the creation of an all-new web site, one that more aptly celebrates his work. The site, www.artesedesign.com, features a complete slide show that illustrates the breadth of Joe's work from his eloquent interior design solutions, furniture, on-board galleries and breathtaking salons and master suites to a rich history of exterior styling and innovative design breakthroughs that have, in some cases, literally changed the way modern boats are fundamentally laid-out. The site even features background information offered in a colloquial style that lets the site visitor feel as though they're watching the designs unfold virtually before their eyes.

As Joe says—and one caption reads—“Most simply stated, our clients want to fall in love with their yachts and as designers, our fundamental mission is to create the object of their dreams: an exciting, functional, satisfying seagoing work of art.” Artese's new site simply whets the whistle of those looking to fall in love not only with their next yacht but with that very stuff of dreams which yachting is made of.

Please visit today and often: www.artesedesign.com.
